MONDAY EVENING, JANUARY 21.

Attempted Elopement. A letter in the Richmond Dispatch from Tazewell Court House says :-This morning our town was thrown into a state of wild excitement by an event as novel as it was sonsational-novel because of the unusual hour at which it was enacted, and sensational on account of the daring boldness of the swain who thus sought to quell the consuming passion that Cupid had kindled in his suscepti-

of this county, a beautiful young pupil in the Tazewell High School. Miss Steele spent the Christmas at her home, and it is thought an Christmas at her home, and it is thought an elopement was then planned. Sunday morning about 2 c'clock Mr. White arrived here, leading a horse equipped with a side saddle, and put up at Dodd's Hotel. Some time during the morning a negro was bribed to convey a satchel containing the young lady's trous seau (?) from the school house to the hotel. Circumstances indicate that it was the intention of the latter to surreptiously disapapear from the church (which it was customary with her to regularly attend) or go home with one of the day scholars, and thus gain the oppor-tunity to escape with her lover. Fate, however, was altogether unpropitious. Principal Evans had by some means discovered the plot. He recovered the satchel from the hotel, and was ready at the church to conduct his fair pupil home. But when the congrega-tion was dismissed and the Professor was on his way to the school building with his charge he was confronted by the intrepid lover, who insisted upon, then and there, in broad daylight, bearing off the coveted prize. The Professor was equally determined on retaining possession of her, and during the dispute which followed the street rapidly filled with eager and excited witnesses of the novel, amusing, and somewhat ridiculous scene. The persistent pluck and determination with which the amorous swain resisted the efforts of his opponents in their endeavors to get the young lady into the house and out of sight of the curious throng was worthy of all admiration, which he doubtless received. Finally the Board of Trustees took the matter in hand; and through the persuasion of friends the would be Benedict was induced to go in and "talk the matter over." While they were talking the matter over Professor Evaus sought a magistrate and had a warrant issued for Mr. White's arrest, which, however, was not used, as the matter was otherwise arranged for the time being, at least. At the present writing the young lady is un der close surveillance, and a message has been dispatched for her father, while the disappoint-WEST VIRGINIA COALS ed lover, rumor says, is planning to carry her off under cover of darkness. I should have mentioned above that the young lady exhibited the utmost fortitude ciously to her lover, while he would allow no one to lay hands upon her. As he entered the house with the object of his affection clinging to his arms he was heard to say: "I'll be d-d if I don't have her or die!" The young man is evidently a novice in such matters, and while he was accorded credit for his boldness, he was unanimously derided for the bungling manner in which he conducted the P. S .- A brother of Miss Steel came to town last night with instructions from her father to bring her home, and giving his consent to the marriage, which, it appears, Mr. White had never sought. Accordingly, this morning the brother started home with her, accompanied by Mr. White, Miss White, a sister of the gallant lover, and a school mate of Miss Steele's, and Mr. Harry Estill, a young lawyer of this place and a friend of Mr. White's. I am informed that the young candidate for matrimonial honors vowed his intention of taking his intended to Glade Spring, and thence to Bristol. Apparent. ly he distrusted Miss Steele's brother; but the extreme rigor of the weather will probably compel him to desist from his purpose, and consent to go to the young lady's home and trust to luck for the consummation of his ardent hopes.
